Stages of Dementia

Early Stage
These products can work towards a goal with a tangible outcome like a jigsaw – just the right amount of challenge but totally achievable.

Mid - Late Stage
Products in this group focus on the experience of sensation from the activity and in helping people to move their body in relation to the sensations.

Early - Mid Stage
These products are designed to help people focus on the individual steps of the activity, breaking it into manageable chunks. It’s about experience rather than the end result.

Late Stage
In reflex, movement can be subconscious - a response to direct sensory stimulation. People experience feelings inspired by smell, taste, feel of individual products.
Everyone has a story to tell about their life and history. It’s what makes us special and unique. Putting focus on yourself as an individual and who you are builds a fulfilling sense of identity.

Building a sense of freedom comes with being able to do something yourself and being given the room to make your own decisions, choices and actions.

Through discovery and continual learning comes satisfaction, achievement and confidence. Developing your abilities and knowledge, even temporarily, proves there’s much more life to enjoy and give.

Joy is pivotal and can come from so many sources. But the deepest is when it’s effortless, spontaneous and shared. The slightest of smiles - uncontrived, sparked and unplanned – can bring immense joy to someone and be infectious.

Unlocks personal stories
Boosts independence
Learn something new Sparks smiles and joy
Security brings calm and relaxation and vice versa. Being at ease in your surroundings and reducing self-doubt through enablement makes people feel comfortable and happy.

Nurturing the mind and body – something different, something new or even a daily ritual – works those muscles to keep a sense of life.

Strong relationships are the backbone of support, and the feeling of importance to others tackles emptiness and loneliness. Most importantly, connecting with someone lays a platform for shared joy.

Developing daily purpose, no matter how small, builds a sense of value – both in life, to others and your environment. Mini-successes, new memories, self-pride and sense of importance all add to your place in the world.
